

Pivotal Insight Announces a Contract Award for the Department of Veterans Affairs, Office of Information Technology

Arlington, VA – July 25, 2008 – Pivotal Insight, LLC, a government best practices consulting and research firm, announces an award by the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) Office of Information Technology to assist in the creation and implementation of the Office of Analysis and Evaluation.

The Pivotal Team will assist in designing and implementing an effective Office of Analysis and Evaluation, supported by proven policy and procedures, that is capable of making evidence-based decisions about current and potential IT projects and programs. This support includes developing the organizational charter, defining roles and responsibilities, establishing the business processes and procedures, developing the data collection requirements, creating full lifecycle cost estimation models, and conducting strategic communication and outreach with VA stakeholders.

“We are excited to assist the Office of Information Technology. This is core to what we do at Pivotal and it provides the VA the opportunity to establish an IT portfolio management capability that can serve as a model for other government organizations,” remarked David Bergert, President of Pivotal Insight.

About the VA Office of Information Technology

As directed by the Chief Information Officer (CIO), the Office of Information & Technology (OI&T) delivers adaptable, secure and cost effective technology services to the Department of Veterans Affairs and acts as a steward for all VA's IT assets and resources.

The office advises and assists the CIO on matters relating to VA-wide responsibilities and functions, including policy/budget formulation, planning, acquisition, execution, and oversight; internal and external coordination; development and analysis of Department-level program data; and assessment of Department IT requirements. OI&T's role is defined in OMB Circular A-130, which implements the Clinger-Cohen Act.
